Are yesterday's cost increases still justified?

Key takeaways for leaders preparing their 2027 budgets.

Costs moved up.

Have your assumptions moved on?

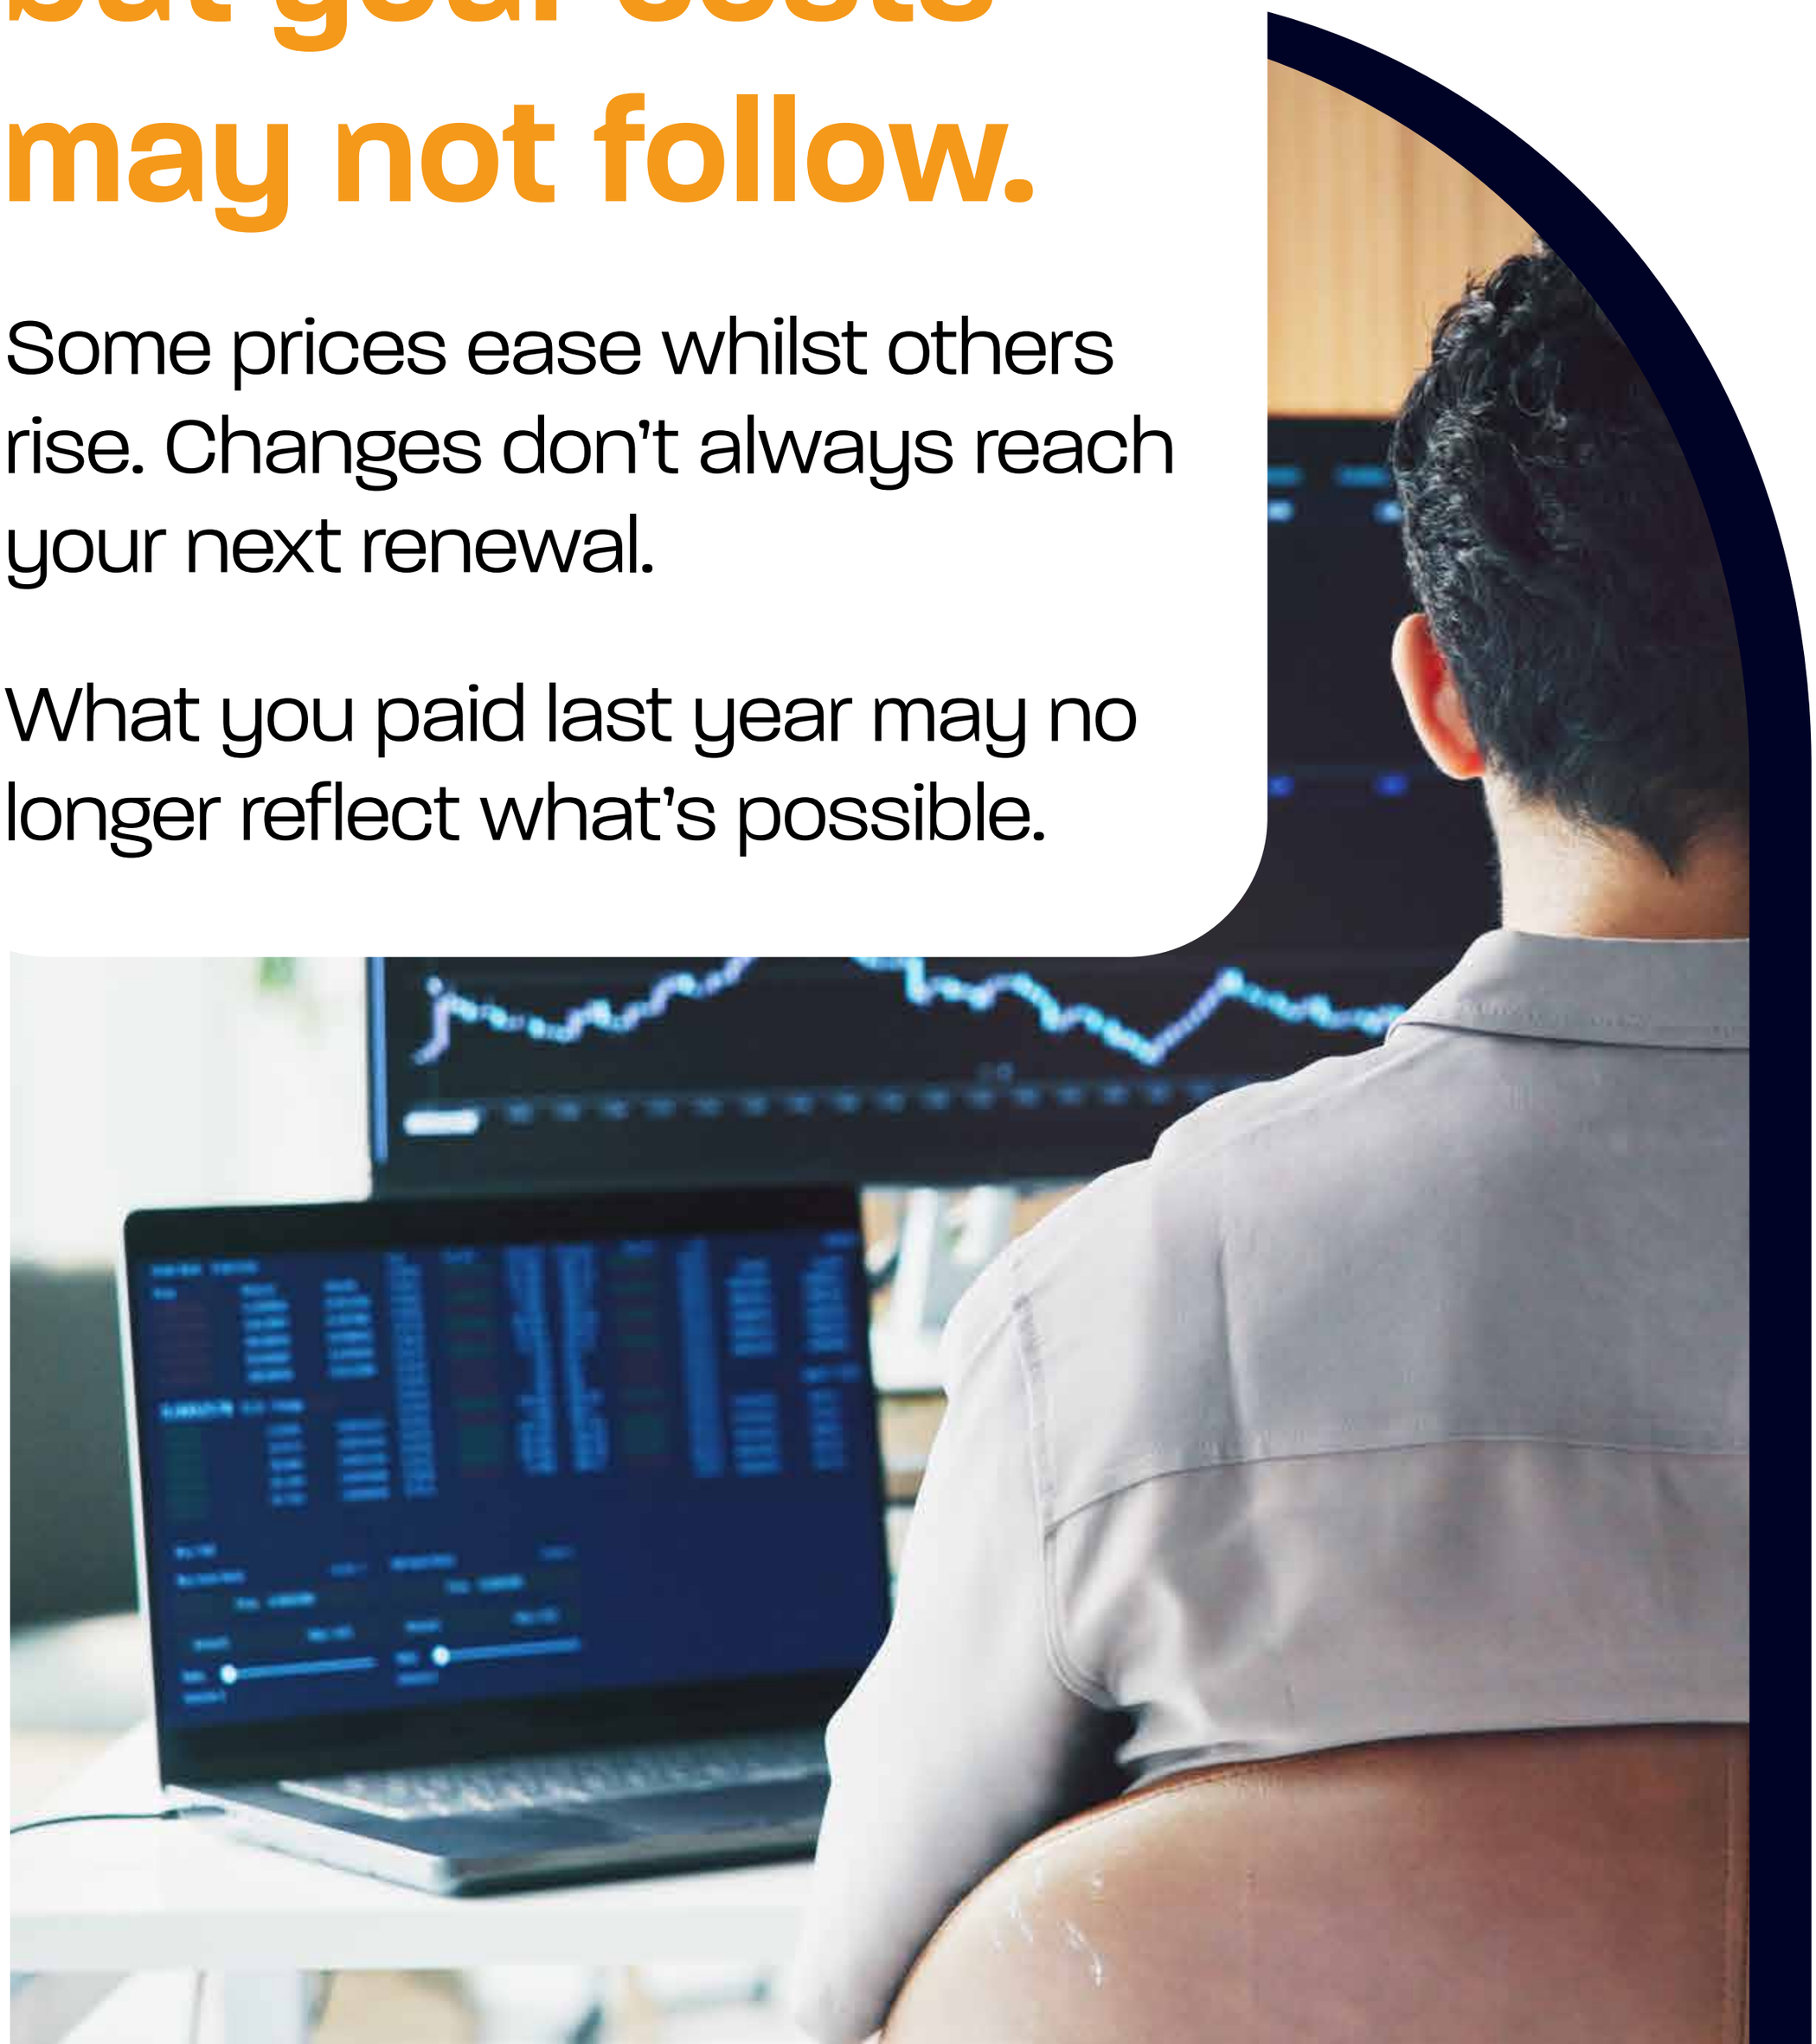

Many organisations accepted higher prices to keep operations running during disruption.

Those decisions made sense then.
But are they still right today?

Markets change but your costs may not follow.

Some prices ease whilst others rise. Changes don't always reach your next renewal.

What you paid last year may no longer reflect what's possible.

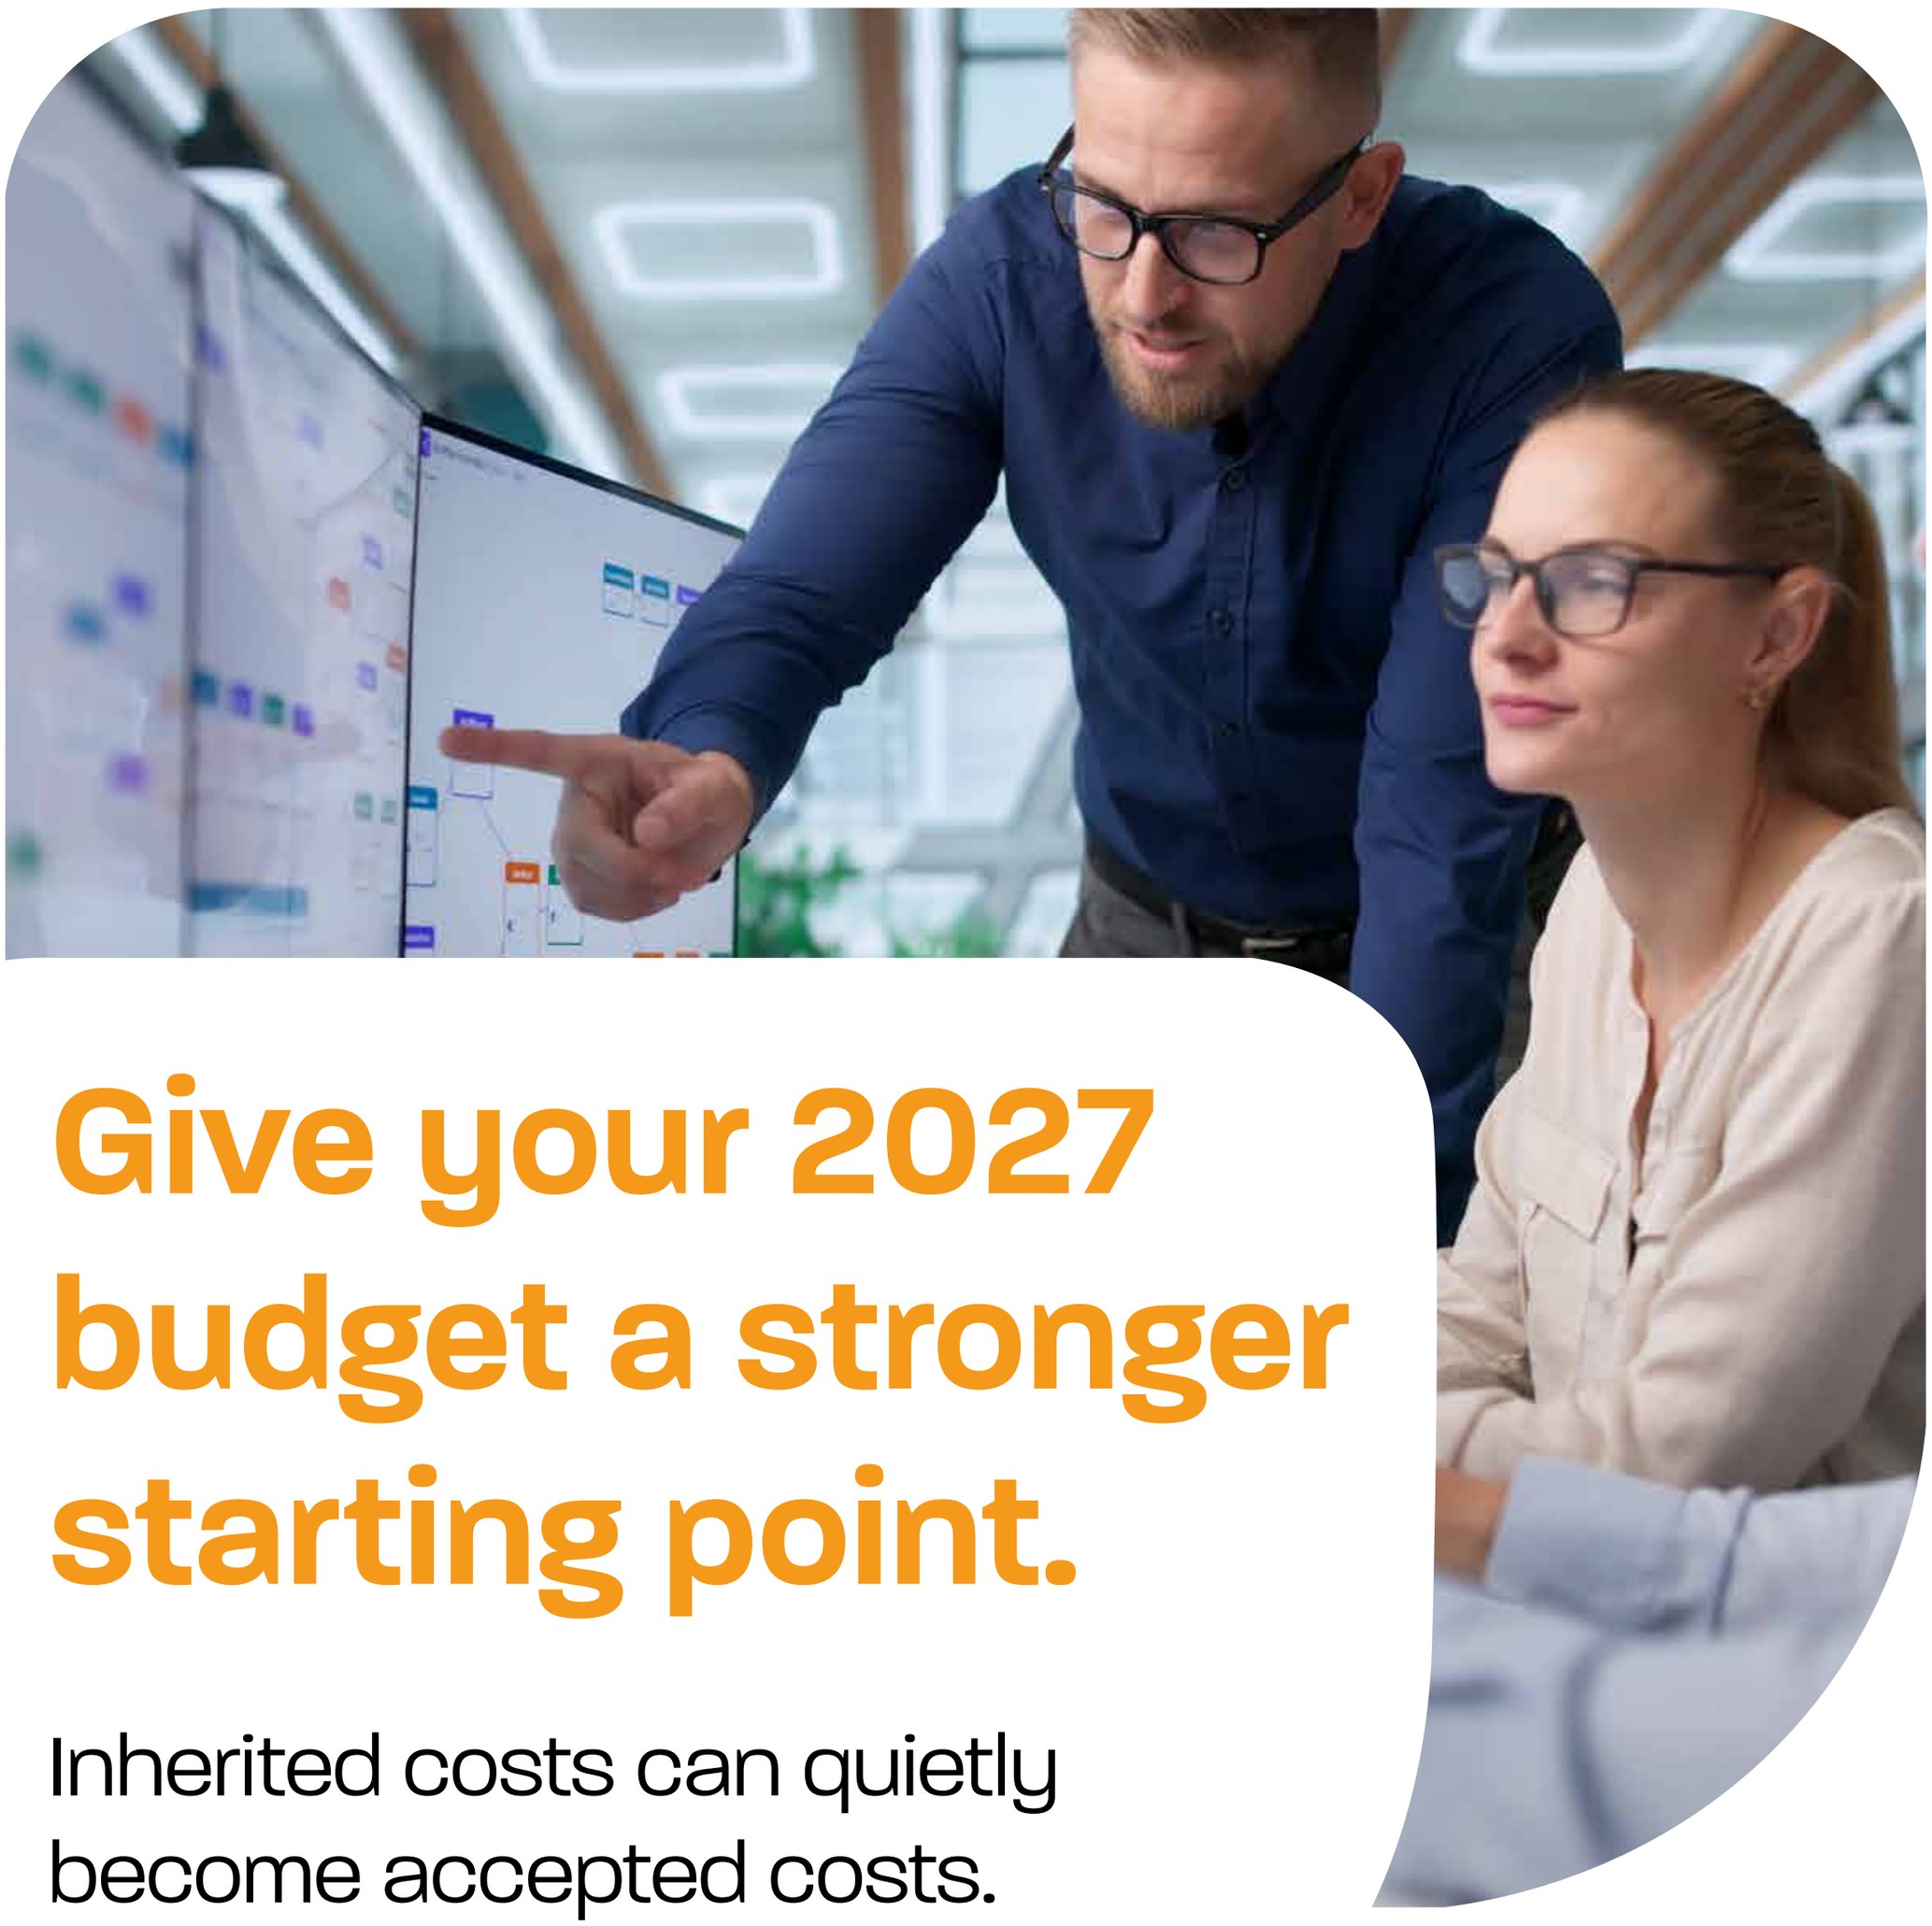

Strong relationships still deserve a fresh perspective.

A trusted supplier can remain the right choice.

Independent insight can help you understand whether the arrangement still delivers the value you need.

Give your 2027 budget a stronger starting point.

Inherited costs can quietly become accepted costs.

A fresh perspective today could reveal opportunities to strengthen margins and release resources for your priorities.
